AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCES

General Orders
No. 38-A

France, February 28, 1919

MY FELLOW SOLDIERS:

Now that your service with the American Expeditionary Forces is about to terminate, I cannot let you go without a personal word. At the call to arms, the patriotic young manhood of America eagerly responded and became the formidable army whose decisive victories testify to its efficiency and its valor. With the support of the nation firmly united to defend the cause of liberty, our army has executed the will of the people with resolute purpose. Our democracy has been tested, and the forces of autocracy has been defeated. To the glory of the citizen-soldier, our troops have faithfully fulfilled their trust and in a succession of brilliant offensives have overcome the menace to our civilization.

As an individual, your part in the world war has been an important one in the sum total of our achievements. Whether keeping lonely vigil in the trenches, or gallantly storming the enemy's stronghold; whether enduring monotonous drudgery at the rear, or sustaining the fighting line at the front, each has bravely and efficiently played his part. By willing sacrifice of personal rights; by cheerful endurance of hardship and privation; by vigor, strength and indomitable will, made effective by thorough organization and cordial co-operation, you inspired the war-worn Allies with new life and turned the tide of threatened defeat into overwhelming victory.

With a consecrated devotion to duty and a will to conquer, you have loyally served your country. By your exemplary conduct a standard has been established and maintained never before attained by any army. With mind and body as clean and strong as the decisive blows you delivered against the foe, you are soon to return to the pursuits of peace. In leaving the scenes of your victories, may I ask that you carry home your high ideals and continue to live as you have served-- an honor to the principles for which you have fought and to the fallen comrades you leave behind.

It is with pride in our success that I extend to you my sincere thanks for your splendid service to the army and to the nation.

Faithfully,

Commander in Chief.

OFFICIAL:

ROBERT C. DAVIS,
Adjutant General.

IN MEMORIAM

Two comrades of World War I rest in Lakeview Cemetery at Windsor, their graves linked by a private of the U. S. Marine Corps who died six years after their untimely deaths. Two of these honored dead are Windsor boys for whom Forbes-McKay Post No. 109 was named at the time it was chartered. Inscriptions on these tombstones, photographed on Armistice Day, 1949, read as follows:

Edward P. Forbes May 11, 1898 June 24, 1918 Killed in Action in France.	Angus L. McKay Colorado Sergeant Medical Supply Depot 3 October 19, 1918

DRAFTEE

I am one of the fellows that made the world safe for Democracy. What a crazy thing it was. I fought and I fought, but I had to go anyway. I was called in class 1-A. The next time I want to be in class "B." Be here when they go, and be here when they get back. I remember when I registered. I went up to the desk and the man in charge was our milkman. He said, "What's your name?" I said you know my name. "What is your name?" he barked. I told him August Childs. He said "Are you an alien?" I said "no," I feel fine." He asked me how old I was and I told him twenty-three on the first of September and he said by that time you will be in France and that will be the last of August.

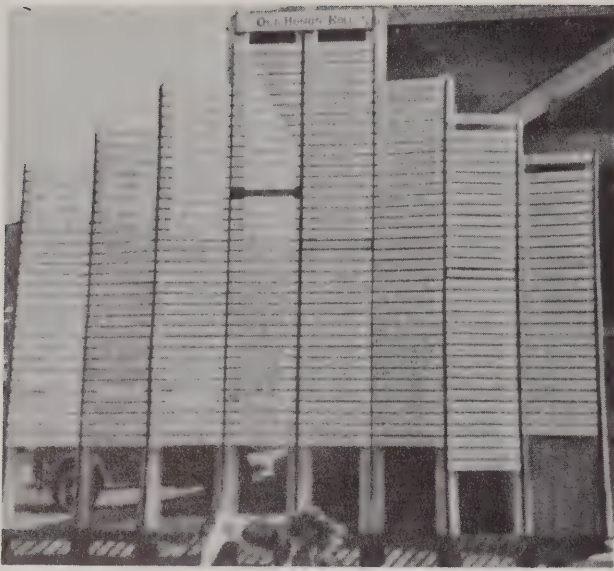

The day I went to camp I guess they didn't think I'd live long. The fellow I met first, wrote on my car, Flying Corps. I went a little farther and some fellow said, "Look what the wind blows in." I said "Wind nothing, the draft is doing it." The second morning they put these clothes on me. What an outfit. As soon as you are in it you think you can fight anything. They have two sizes--too small and too large. The pants are so small, I can't sit down. The shoes are so big I turned around three times and they didn't move. And what a raincoat they gave me. It strained the rain. I passed an officer all dressed up in a funny belt and all of that stuff. He yelled after me, "Didn't you notice my uniform when you passed?" "Yes, but what are you kicking about, look what they gave me."

Oh, it was nice. It was five below zero one morning when they called me out for inspection. You talk about scenery--red-flannels, BVD'S all kinds. The union suit I had on would fit Tony Galento. The Lieutenant lined us up and told me to stand up--I said "I'm standing up sir" this underwear makes you think I'm sitting down." He got so mad he put me out digging a ditch. A little later he passed me and said, "Don't throw that dirt up here." I said, "where am I going to put it?" He said, "Dig another hole and throw it in there."

Three days later we de-railed for France. Marching down the pier I had more hard luck. I had a Sergeant who stuttered and it took him so long to say halt that twenty-seven of us marched overboard. They pulled us out, lifted us up on the pier and then the Captain came along and shouted, "Fall in." I said, "I've just been in Sir."

I was on the boat twelve days. I had six meals a day, three went down and three came up. I leaned over the rail all the time. In the middle of my best lean, the Captain rushed up and said, "What company are you in?" I said, "I'm by myself." He asked if the Brigadier was up yet. I said, "If I swallowed it, it's up." Talk about dumb people. I said to one of the fellows, "I guess we've dropped anchor." He said, "I knew we'd lose it, it's been hanging over the side ever since we left New York."

We landed in France and were immediately sent to the trenches. The cannons started to roar and the shells started to pass. I was shaking with patriotism. I tried to hide behind a tree, but there was just enough for the officers. The captain come along and said, "We go over the top at five o'clock." I said, "Captain, I'd like to have a furlough." He said, "Haven't you any blood in you," to which I replied, "yes, but I don't want to see it." At five o'clock we went over the top. 10,000 Germans came at us. The way they looked at me you'd think that I started the war. Our Captain called out, "Fire at will," but I didn't know any of them by name. I guess the fellow behind me thought I was Will because he fired and shot me in the excitement.

THE YANKS

Oh The English And The Irish And The Ooting Scotties Too
The Cannucks And Austreyleyins And The Ami French Polie
The Only Thing That Bothered Us A Year Before We Knew
Was Ow In Ell The Yanks Ud Look And What In Ell They Do.

They Dident Ad No Traning They didnt Know The Game
They Adnt Never Marched It Much. There Shootin Was The Same
And The Only Thing That Bothered Us That Day In Last July
Was Ow In Ell The Line Would Hold If They Should Run Away.

Them Leggy Noisy New Uns Just Come Across The Sea
We Couldnt Elp But Wonder Ow In Ell Their Guts Would Be
And The Only Thing That Bothered Us In All Our Staggering Ranks
Was Wot In Ell Ud Appen When The Huns Ud Hit The Yanks.

My Word It Appened Sudden When Drive Ad First Begun
We Seed The Yanks A Runing Good Bliner Ow They Run
But The Only Thing That Bothered Us To See The Chase Begin
Was Ow In Ell To Stop Em For They Got Into Berlin.

They Dident Ave No Tactics But The Bloody Manual
They Hadent Learned No Oreders But Oorny And Give Em Ell
But The Only Thing That Bothered Us About Them Lanky Lads
Was Ow In Ell To Get The Chow To Feed Them Comrades.

So Were Standing Altogether In A Stiffish Firm Line
If Any One Should Aush You, You Can Say Were Doing Fine
But The Only Thing That Botheres Us And That Dont Bother Much
Is Where In Ell To Get The Dirt To Bury All Them Dutch.

Gods Truth Its Rotten Fighting That All Our Troops As Seen.
The Hun Is A Dirty Player Because He Has Always Been
But The Only Thing That Bothers Us In Handing In Our Thanks
Is Ow In Ell Wed Done It If It Wasent For The Yanks.

Oh The English And The Irish And The Owlin Scotties Too
The Cannacks And Austriylans And The Airyb French Poilu
The Only Thing That Bothers Us Dont Bother Us On More
Its Only Y. In Ell We Dident Know The Yankee Boys Before.

Around

"ROSLYN"

In The Heart of The Cascade Mountains,
Close to The Foot of The Hill,
Nestles The Town of Roslyn,
And my Memories Treasure it still;

A Quaint Mining Town was Roslyn,
Throw back to days of the past,
A Melting Pot of all Nations,
But, a Town that was destined to last;

Miners, from many Countries,
Answered The Black Diamond's Call,
Men with a Fearless Courage,
Sometimes with their backs to The Wall;

Scotch, English, Welsh, and Irish,
Slovaks, Italians and Poles,
They built The Town of Roslyn,
And Loved it with Heart and Soul;

Working like Slaves in the Galleys,
In The Dip, The Slopes or The Shaft,
With Danger of Death, always near them,
From Rock or A Premature Blast;

How well I remember The Stretchers
As they carried them down the Hill,
With The Wives and Children watching,
Fear, making Their hearts, Stand still;

But in spite of Their Cares and Troubles,
And The Hazardous Lives they lived,
They were Reckless, Carefree and Happy,
And always ready to give;

A Rollicking Bunch of Good Spenders,
Hard Drinkers, Good Haters Too,
If you wanted a fight, on Saturday night,
Well Pal, it was just up to you;

Then Tragedy came to Roslyn,
Many answered The Grim Reaper's Call,
In The Great Explosion of '92
When Death, Cast a Gloom over all;

And The Gallant Rescue Parties
Composed only, of older men,
That Challenged, The Black Damp's Menace,
To bring out Their Fallen Friends;

No Gas Masks or Safety Appliance,
Just a Wet Towel o'er Mouth and Nose,
They Advanced on The Hidden Danger,
Daring, Death's Angel to Choose;

They performed Their Last Sad Duty,
When Their Comrades were laid to Rest,
Then tried to Comfort Their families,
That was the hardest test;

Roslyn tried to forget her trouble,
Then Suddenly The Town was Agog,
As The News, was Passed, from Lip to Lip,
The Roslyn Bank's been Robbed;

The Excitement had hardly died away,
When another Tragedy came,
Dr. J. H. Lyons was Murdered,
Roslyn's Medical Man of Fame;

His Slayer was not Apprehended,
He roams at will, thru The Land,
But I know if we could see it,
He bears The Murderer's Brand;

As, I Thumb back The Pages of Memory,
And think of the days that are gone,
I Remember The Hike up The Old Railroad Track,
And the Skating on Anderson's Pond;

I can Never Forget the Dances,
That were held in Unity Hall,
Smith's Orchestra Furnished The Music,
The Floor Manager Boss, over All;

Oh, The Schottische, The Waltz, and The Polka,
Quadrille's and The Minuette Too,
The Girls lost their Voice, when they Called Ladies' Choice,
And your Best Beau, was waiting for you;

And The Grand Fourth of July Celebration,
Was, The Great Event of The Year,
The Girl that was "Goddess of Liberty,"
Was The Envy of all, Far and Near;

The Parade Led the way to The Ball Park,
Where The Sports of The Day took Place,
And Everyone Shouted with Pleasure,
As they watched the three Legged Race;

Then came The Long waited Ball Game,
Between The Greys and The Roslyn First Nine,
The Fans were Wild with Excitement,
Ah, Those were The Grand Old Times;

How Tensely the Crowd always waited,
And a Silence, would settle o'er all,
As Dan Lloyd, The Official Umpire,
Took his Place, and Called loudly, Play Ball;

First Nine Batteries were, Meyers and Mansfield,
Williams and Booth for The Greys, on The Lot,
Tom Booth's Bid for Fame, came that Day in The Game,
He Struck, "Bluntie, The Great Hitter," out;

Then, Jud Wake scored from second,
He just cut thru the diamond, that's all,
The umpire missed all the action,
He was too busy, watching the Ball;

I wonder how many remember, Dick Prescott's
Great Slide, to the plate,
The rage of the fans, as Dan Lloyd waved his hand
And called, Out, You're a little bit late;

He's safe yelled the Fans,
Give the Umpire the Can,
Dan Lloyd never Budged,
Stood his Ground like a Man;

He may have been safe, as you state, said Dan
But I called him Out, and He's out like a Clam,
Till there's Skating in Hell, and No Waves on The Sea,
For that's The kind of an Umpire, I am, said he;

Let me think of The Old Friends and Neighbors,
The Meneghel's, Brennan's and Kanes,
The Mulligan's, Jones's and Bailey's,
And The Henry's, of Pioneer Fame;

The Dullahant's, Green's and The Milby's,
The Richmond's and others I knew,
Hoagland and Swain, The Company Bachelor Team,
And The Mine Boss, was Bob Pettigrew;

When all your Plays have been made, and The Bets are all Paid,
And The Final Accounting draws Nigh,
When St. Peter says Next, and You Cash in your Cheques,
You'll find The Old Roslyn Friends, "STANDING BY."

The Lennon's, Jenkins, and Ostliff's
I wish I could mention them all,
But there's one that we must Remember,
Johnnie Moore, was The Arm of The Law;

How Jolly and Friendly was Roslyn,
And I don't mean, only in Name
But a Sociable Bunch of Good Neighbors,
Till "The Curse of The 400 Came."

Then some of The Women decided,
They must draw a Social Line,
Miners Wives could not be included,
My dear, It was just Too, Sublime;

So The Lists were Carefully Checked over.
We Just can't Invite, Mrs. DeLann,
Why not? Her Husband's no Miner,
Didn't You Know? He's "An Entry Man?"

My Story is almost Concluded,
The Old Timers are answering The Call,
Their "Shift," is just about Finished,
All "Stope'd Out, " It's The End of us All;

AN EARLY HISTORY OF ROSLYN

The black diamond is king in Roslyn. It is more than king; it is life itself. Around its discovery and exploitation is centered the history of the city's establishment and growth. Roslyn coal is known throughout the west as one of the best commodities of its kind on the market.

The Roslyn coal fields were opened to the commercial world in the fall of 1886, though their discovery antedates that time by perhaps a few years, as John Stoves, trapper, found traces of coal in creek down where city of Roslyn now stands in the year 1885. Cayuse Jensen, on whose timber claim the coal was found, hauled the first loads out to Ellensburg with four horse teams.

In 1886 Northern Pacific railway surveying party equipped with diamond drill discovered the Roslyn vein. The results of their work was so encouraging that railway engineers surveyed a branch line from Cle Elum to the scene and active preparations were begun for installing a plant at the mines. In the next ten years, more than one million dollars were spent in developing the mines.

The site of Roslyn was platted by Logan M. Bullitt, Vice-President of the Northern Pacific Coal Company. On September 22, 1886, the dedication and filing papers were signed in Minnesota and filed for record in Kittitas County eight days later. The site, which was surveyed by E. J. Rector, C. E., was composed of eleven blocks; the width of the streets was fixed at sixty feet, except in the case of Pennsylvania Avenue, which was made eighty feet wide and Utah and Montana Avenues and Third Street, which were made half the regular width. December 13, following, Mr. Bullitt platted Brookside addition, small tract of three blocks lying northeast of the original townsite and the same township. Only one other addition was ever laid out, the Dale addition, a small one adjoining the original townsite on the southwest; it was platted by Mr. Bullitt, August 20, 1887.

Regarding the christening of Roslyn, the following rather romantic and facetious account appeared in the Roslyn Sentinel issued March 1, 1895.

"A very pretty, if not exciting, little romance," reads the story," is associated with the early history of this camp and in fact it was through this circumstance that this promising little city received its name. On the far away Delaware's shores, midst the sand hills, peach orchards and blue-blooded 'skeeters, 'nestles a little hamlet which was christened Roslyn over a century ago. The inhabitants were of primitive stock, high-bred and gilded and the cultured daughters of these ancient households were the special objects of the adoration of numerous enterprising young men in the neighboring cities. In this aristocratic retreat there dwelt a bright, handsome and vivacious maiden who was particularly dear to the heart of a brave and sturdy young man who was penetrating this wild Northwest in 1886 in search of fame and fortune. This gentleman was Logan M. Bullitt, one of our earliest pioneers. It fell to the lot of Mr. Bullitt to name this camp and it was an opportunity that he had longed for. After mature deliberation, he christened the town Roslyn, August 10, 1886, after the town in which his loved one dwelt. The event was duly celebrated and the decision made public by a bulletin in the shape of a board on which the name had been inscribed with a pine coal. The bulletin was nailed to a large pine tree which stood on the site of Patrick's business property. Whether Mr. Bullitt afterwards realized the delicate hopes he fondly entertained in the early days of Roslyn we know not, but if his fortunes in love were as fickle as Roslyn's career has been checkered, he has certainly had a very interesting time.

"Some little doubt exists, however, as to the manner in which Roslyn gained its name and it may be well to state that another report credits Mr. Bullitt with christening the camp after a county seat belonging to an intimate New York friend."

The first business buildings to be erected in the new business center were a general store and saloon, built and opened by the Coal Company in August. These frame buildings stood at the corner of Pennsylvania Avenue and First Street, diagonally across from each other. A desire to regulate the liquor traffic induced the company to establish the saloon, which was the only one allowed in the town. Other drinking places were soon opened in the surrounding woods, creating so great a nuisance that eventually the company was forced to permit the liquor interests to enter the town, where they could be in some measure regulated.

Other businesses established were, W. M. Atwood's general store, a boarding house, John Clemer's notion and clothing store and two livery barns owned by Patrick Henry and Knuppenberg and Kennedy. These business enterprises, the mine, a few professional men, the coal company officers and employees and a large transient population formed the hustling community which, about the first of December, 1886, welcomed the iron horse. Sometime in the fall a train load of Italian miners reached camp and fully four-hundred men spent the winter of 1886-87 there.

Roslyn entered the year 1888, one of the most memorable of its history, with a population of between 1,000 and 1,200 people and in a highly flourishing condition. The city's first calamity was experienced that year, June 22, 1888. From some unknown cause, about four o'clock in the afternoon fire broke out in the block between First and Second streets, above the railroad, and within a very short time the entire business portion of the town was in ashes. The loss was estimated at $100,000, with little insurance, owing to the fact that insurance companies were asking a ten per cent premium at that time. The fire worked great hardships upon the merchants who lost all their merchandise. But new business houses immediately arose over the charred remains of their predecessors and in a comparatively short period business has resumed the even tenor of its way.

Temporarily passing the details connected with the incorporation of Roslyn as a city in 1889, we may say that the early 'nineties were not on the whole particularly prosperous ones in Roslyn, though from a newspaper of the time we learn that the pay roll for December 1890, was $84,000, the miners working full time. The succeeding months this pay roll fell to $63,000 and in March 1891, by reason of the loss of the Union Pacific contracts, the company was able to operate the mines only four days a week. This unsatisfactory condition prevailed most of the time until November 1892, when mine No. 3 was reopened. Then the monthly pay roll speedily reached $54,000 and all winter it steadily increased.

The leading businesses of Roslyn in 1895, according to the Roslyn Sentinel of March 1, were the following:

Charles Adam, Mayor, building contractor, who established the Roslyn planing mill in 1889; Archibald Patrick, mine owner and contractor; Roslyn Mercantile Company, Melvin Marz and Davis Strauss, proprietors; W. M. Atwood, general merchandise; Greenberg Brothers, dry goods; Mossop Kitchen, livery; Swain & Haight, general merchandise; Schlotfeldt Brothers & Sides, meat market; Sides & Hartman; L. F. McConihe and John Corgiat, Restaurants; H. P. Fogh, general merchandise; Roslyn Brewing Company, composed of A. F. Kuhl, Ernest and Charles D. Duerrwachter and Schlotfeldt Brothers; W. A. Mohr, of the general merchandise firm of Bonsel Brothers & Mohr, postmaster; Carollo & Genasci, general merchandise; Henry Rachor, cigar factory; Joseph Denny, barber; Fosberg & Duerrwachter, successors to Thomas Lund, merchants; L. W. Kribs, building contractor postmaster from 1888 to 1892; Dr. W. H. Harris, Dr. J. H. Lyons, physicians; E. E. Wager, city attorney; Henry Smith, justice of the peace; superintendent of schools, Professor J. J. Charlton; Louis D. Campbell, Samuel Mills, Brown Brothers, Henry Brothers, William Van Buren & Son, A. Perona, Steven Potheary, Thomas Cadwell, M. Jorogeson, Mrs. Boyd, Mrs. Bryant, Louis Grosmiller, Samuel Isaac, T. M. Jones, George Koppen, Daniel Hannah, Robert Scobie, Christopher Meneghel, Edward J. Hanlan, Giovanni & Buffo, and Berg Brothers; besides whom the Sentinel gives us the list of the Northern Pacific Coal Company's officials; General Manager, John Kangley; Assistant general manager, Thomas Cooper, successor to H. C. Lytle; superintendent at Roslyn, George Harrison, who succeeded Alexander Ronald in 1888; assistant superintendents, Robert Pettigrew, John Shaw; superintendents at Mine No. 3, Ronald, George Frosythe; clerk and paymaster, John L. Taggard, serving since 1888; assistant, Walter S. Lytle; manager supply house, A. L. Sowers; traffic Manager, W. P. Morgan; assistant, John D. Clemmer; veterinary surgeon, William Thompson; check weighman, James Heron and John Donovan.

On Thursday night, March 19, 1896, Dr. J. H. Lyon was brutally murdered, within a few feet of his own doorstep. The victim of this foul deed was among the earliest pioneers of the camp, was company physician there for many years, and one of the country's most prominent and popular citizens. Rain clouds made the night one of unusual darkness and the murderers must have lain in wait for the doctor, as his body was found shortly after he had parted from Samuel Isaacs, a merchant, with whom Dr. Lyon had walked home. Death resulted from a fractured skull, the deceased having been stuck twice at the base of the skull with a blunt weapon resembling a table leg, which was found near the scene of the crime covered with blood and hair. Robbery was not the object of the murder as Dr. Lyon's pocketbook and jewelry were found undisturbed upon his person.

The news of the murder created intense excitement at home and horror throughout the state as the deceased had a large circle of friends and acquaintances and was prominent in society and in political affairs. The citizens of Roslyn at once offered a reward of $400.00 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer, the city offered a reward of $300.00, the governor of the state $500.00, and Kittitas county $300.00, making a total of $1,500.00. A most determined effort was made by the authorities to apprehend the thug or thugs. Suspicion fell upon two miners, brothers, who were known to have made threats against Dr. Lyon, charging him with having been responsible for the death of a third brother. On the strength of slight evidence and against the advice of Detective D. W. Simmons the Roslyn authorities arrested the men. They were discharged, a preliminary examination held at March 25. The cunning of the criminal baffled all efforts to discover him and no further arrests were ever made, so the mystery enshrouding one of the blackest crimes in the state's history still remains unsolved.

In 1896, also, during the month of December, diphtheria laid its clutch on Roslyn's population and by the 23rd there had been three deaths out of eight cases reported. The schools were closed, church services discontinued and all public gatherings prohibited for a considerable length of time. Fortunately, the number of fatal cases was very small.

Again late in the fall of 1900, Roslyn experienced an invasion of a contagious disease. This time the inhabitants were attacked by a light form of smallpox which swept the country upon the return of our troops from the Orient. Schools were closed and public meetings suppressed. In all there were several hundred cases reported the large number being principally due to the unusually poor sanitary conditions of the city, but fortunately the death rate was exceedingly small.

The city of Roslyn was incorporated twice---once in the territorial days and again when Washington became a state. The first corporation took place in the spring of 1889 and was occasioned by the community's desire to install a water system. A petition signed by B. P. Shefflete, J. E. Thomas, Isaac Brown, George H. Brown, Henry Smith, John Abrams, C. R. Bonsel, I. Bonsel, P. Laurendear, Isaac Harris, John Berg and one-hundred and fifteen other tax payers was presented to the judge and on February 4, 1889 Roslyn was proclaimed an incorporated town. Trustees were: Isaac Brown, Chairman; William A. Moore, James Graham, John Dalton and Charles Miller.

The organization of the state in 1889 resulted in the adoption by the legislature of a general incorporation law under which Roslyn was re-incorporated in April 1890, as a city of the third class. The city's population was 4,000 people, a majority of whom were Slavs, Italians, Negroes and Germans, though the native American race was dominant. Of this number the coal company employed 1,500 in mining and handling its 90,000-ton output of coal a month.

The city's most prominent social institution was the Roslyn Athletic Club, which had a membership of two-hundred ladies and gentlemen. This association owed its establishment to the generosity of Manager B. F. Bush, of the Northwestern Improvement Company, who sought this to provide the young men with an attractive, moral place of recreation. In the fall of 1902 he made his employees the proposition that he would build and equip a club house if they would incorporate an association, take charge of the building, and as soon as possible repay him, without interest. The men under the leadership of Storekeeper, D. S. Kinney, accepted the offer. Mr. Bush erected on First Street a handsome, two-story building, costing at least $3,000, and equipped it with a bowling alley, gymnasium, etc., at a further expense of approximately $2,000.

Of half a dozen newspapers established at different times in Roslyn, in 1904 the only one surviving was the Cascade Miner, a weekly owned and edited by the Randall Brothers.

Prominent business houses in 1904 were: General Store maintained by the coal company, managed by D. S. Kinney, general merchandise, D. A. Brown and Company; meat markets, Sides Brothers and Hartman, Roslyn Meat Market; drugs, Roslyn Pharmacy, A. Stoves, proprietor; Hardware Paints, etc., William Rees; dry goods, notions, W. J. Sexley; Clothing, Gus Linstrom; Millinery, Mrs. Elizabeth Bostock, Miss Anna Kuhl; groceries, Carollo & Genasci, Klarich & Miller; brewery, Roslyn Brewing Company; saw mill, Northwestern Improvement Company; candies, Wilfred Ward; undertaking, Adams & Stoves; cigars, Simon Justham, John Briggs, John Pope, John Buffo; bakery; German, John Bardesono, proprietor; hotels, Halstead, Mrs. Charles Jones, proprietress; The Roslyn, Nicholas Rees, proprietor; lodging houses, the California, Mrs. De Nato, proprietress, Stephen Potheary, James Lane; boarding house, Mrs. Weatherly; blacksmith shop, William Brothers; contractors, Banister Brothers, William Adams, R. P. Lumsden and Company, and J. Feigle; jewelry, T. J. Thomas, Leonard Gabler; restaurants, The Gem, Mrs. Wesley, proprietress, Mrs. Ellen Scott, John Buffo; photograph gallery, I. A. Kautz; attorneys at law, Daniel B. Payne, Welsh & Moore; James Lane; Northern Pacific agent, W. P. Morgan; eighteen saloons and local organizations of all the leading fraternities.

Roslyn is 2,222 feet above the sea level, in the very heart of the foothills, which gives the region beautiful surroundings and one of the healthiest climates to be found anywhere in the states.

End--

Coal stripping operations on hillside between Roslyn and Cle Elum. Looking southward across No. 5 mine and Central Coal Cleaning Plant of the Northwestern Improvement Company to Peoh-Point and the Taneum Ridge. Coal seam stripped of overburden by bulldozers in foreground.

While the steeply pitching coal seams in the Roslyn-Cle Elum field are not considered favorable for stripping, underground mining in the early days left some "patches" of coal along the hillside where light cover and bad roof conditions made underground mining difficult..... Since 1943, these "patches" are being stripped and the coal extracted successfully.

HISTORY OF THE MINING INDUSTRY

The Roslyn-Cle Elum-Ronald coal field is situated near the head of the Yakima Valley in the eastern foothills of the Cascade range of mountains. Ground elevation above sea level within the field varies from 1900 feet at Cle Elum to 2400 feet at Ronald and 3750 feet on the northern edge of the field at top of Teanaway ridge. The whole area of the field was originally heavily timbered with fir and pine.

The field is completely isolated from those in Western Washington by the main range of the Cascade Mountains, and contains the only coal of any consequence in the great intermountain area from these mountains to the Rockies. Although the field is small (about 21 square miles) compared to some of the great fields of the East, Middle West and the Rocky Mountain states, it has been of tremendous importance in the development of the Pacific Northwest.

Regular production of coal began shortly after the completion of the main line of the Northern Pacific Railway into the area. The first recorded shipment being 1500 tons in December 1886, from No. 1 Mine at Roslyn.

Other mines of the Northern Pacific Coal Company, as it was known at that time and operations of the Roslyn Fuel Company, the Roslyn-Cascade Company and some smaller concerns were opened and developed, so that by the year 1901 over a million tons per year was being produced in the field, the high peak of production being 1,837, 937 tons in 1920.

Production continued at the rate of over a million tons a year until 1930, but the exhaustion of some mines in the field and serious competition by oil and other fuels in the market areas has reduced production in the Roslyn-Cle Elum field to about 600,000 tons a year. From 1886 to 1948 inclusive the field has produced 56,323,991 tons of coal; about 52,000,000 tons of which came from the No. 5 or Roslyn seam, which averages only about 56 inches thick.

About 5,000 people now live in the immediate area of the Roslyn-Cle Elum-Ronald coal field. They or their foreparents came to this area from a good many states of the Union and from practically all the countries of Europe. Living and working together as neighbors, and intermarriage between the various racial groups, has resulted in a citizenry wholly American in the best sense of the word and which compares very favorably with the people in any other community in our nation. Many young people have gone forth from this community to successful careers in other parts of the country and not a few of our young men have died in the service of the nation in the last two great wars. The response of both men and women to the call to military service during the last war was practically one-hundred percent and one is tempted to quote Berton Braley's poem "ONE NATION INDIVISIBLE," as follows.

Under these crosses are lying, men whom America wrought,
Living, they loved her, and dying, fell in the cause that she fought,
Doherty, Bucci, Kaminsky, Grubel, Gerranti, De Saulle,
Gunderson, Susock, Levinsky, Swenson, Americans all.

Names of all nations and races, names that rouse wonder and mirth,
But men of one land that embraces, the faith of all freedom on earth
Reiss, Diachenko, Sicinto, Polyglot names, but they've shown
There was one land they were kin to; they were America's own.

Kordas, Martinez, Van Hooven, these are no "alien dust."
These are the dead who have proven, true to America's trust.
For, where the cannon fire shatters, where men must battle and fall,
Names do not matter - THIS matters, they were Americans all.

This 22 ton piece of coal which was taken from second level wide side No. 2 mine in 1892, was sent to the Chicago World's Fair in 1893.

NORTHWESTERN IMPROVEMENT COMPANIES NO. 4 MINE SHAFT

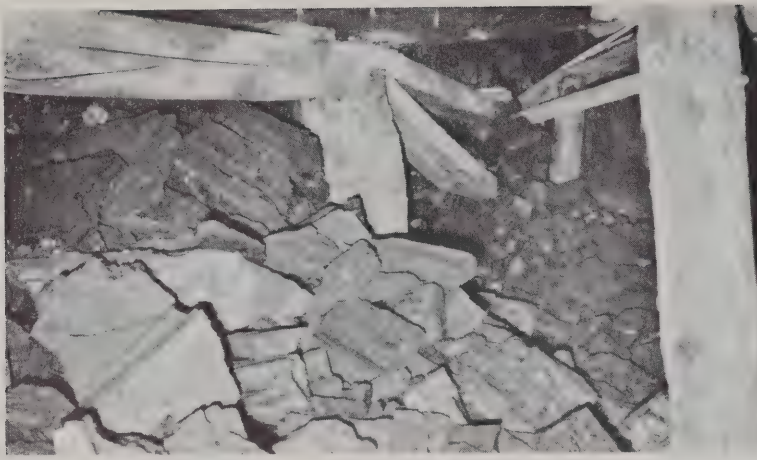

Landing sidetracks, or "Parting," in miner's parlance in coal seam at foot of main slope in Number Three Mine of the Northwestern Improvement Company at Ronald, Washington. The four-and-a-half foot thick coal seam is shown in upper left foreground, but is hardly distinguishable because the coal is coated with limestone dust, sprayed throughout the mines to prevent coal dust explosions.

Preparing to blast down the coal in one of the working faces in Number Three Mine of the Northwestern Improvement Company at Ronald, Washington.

A Coal Cutting Machine cuts a kerf or slot five inches thick and seven feet deep all the way across a working face just above the floor. About eight holes are then drilled to the depth of the machine in the coal. They are charged with a permissible powder which will not ignite explosive gas, even if any were present. The shots are fired electrically by permissible shot-firing equipment.

What happens to a working place in the mine after the coal is all extracted. A "retreating" place in the "Big Seam," in the No. 3 mine of the Northwestern Improvement Company at Ronald, Washington. Rooms are usually driven about 20 feet wide and 300 feet long. The roof is timbered closely with posts and cross-bars. When the room is driven its full distance, the 30 foot wide protecting pillar adjoining is extracted on the retreating system and the enormous weight of overburden crushes the timbering and caves.

Testing for explosive gas with a flame safety lamp in one of the working faces in the "Big Seam," in Number Three Mine of the Northwestern Improvement Company at Ronald, Washington.

Detection of explosive gas is easily done by any experienced miner with a flame safety lamp, which was invented by Sir Humphrey Davies almost two hundred years ago at the behest of the British Government. Explosive gas is much lighter than air, and if present at all will be found at or near the roof of a working place.

Loading coal onto shaking conveyor in one of the working faces in Number Three Mine of the Northwestern Improvement Company at Ronald, Washington. Very little coal is now shoveled directly into mine cars as it is much easier to rake or shovel, it into the conveyor at floor level. Shaking action of conveyor conveys the coal from working face and loads it into mine cars on the haulage entry or gangway.

Looking northward to top of Teanaway Ridge. Number three mine timber yard, steam hoist, and part of general surface plant of Northwestern Improvement Company at Ronald, Washington. A land heavily timbered with fir and pine.

MEN KILLED IN MINE EXPLOSION

EXPLOSION IN ROSLYN

Early in the year 1892 occurred one of those heartrending accidents such as occasionally happen in the course of human activities. About two o'clock in the afternoon of May 9th there was an explosion in the Roslyn mines causing the death of forty-five men. Two boys coming from the mine with a donkey and a car of coal were forcibly expelled from its mouth and after them came a cloud of smoke and gas. As soon as the nature of the accident was surmised a party of twelve men under Foreman Harrison were sent into the mine in search of those within. They found little trouble in descending. When passing between the third and fourth levels they discovered the bodies of Harry Campbell and Leslie Pollard (colored), both of which were, with difficulty, borne by them to the surface, where the reappearance of the rescuers was awaited with not a little anxiety. It was hoped that many of the imprisoned miners might escape. But when the first bodies were examined, despair and gloom possessed the hearts of all.

By 12 o'clock fourteen bodies had been removed, all more or less bruised and burned; and nearly all so disfigured that they could not be identified. Then the gas in the mines became so oppressive as to compel the search party to suspend operations until the mine could be repaired Thursday, the 12th, the work of bringing out the dead was resumed, and by Friday night forty-five bodies had been recovered.

For a time the shock of the disaster was overwhelming, but the sufferers rallied quickly and made the best of their bad situation. Nobly was their appeal for aid responded to by a sympathetic populace. A relief committee was organized and within a few days collected in cash $7,000 from abroad and more than $2,000 in Roslyn, besides supplies of various kinds. The Knights of Pythias alone raised several hundred dollars. Early in June, $8,000 was distributed among the surviving relatives of the dead, sixty-four percent going to the orphans and thirty-six percent to the widows. Subsequently another smaller disbursement was made. Suits instituted against the coal company were compromised by the payment of an immense sum of money to relatives of the deceased.

"THE ROSLYN BANK ROBBERY"

In September of 1892, came news from the mining district that set the whole western country ablaze with excitement. A bold and successful attempt at robbery had been made on the bank of Ben E. Snipes and Company at Roslyn. The manner in which the robbery was conducted as can be gathered from the newspapers of the time was as follows:

Five armed men rode up to the door of the bank, which three of them entered while the two others stood guard outside. Cashier Abernethy was writing when the first robber entered, and turning to wait upon the supposed customer, found himself facing a forty-five Colts revolver. Dr. Lyon who had just entered, turned to go out, but was brought to a halt by a pair of Colts revolvers in the hands of the second robber. The third desperado picked up a pistol belonging to Cashier Abernethy and knocked him down with it. The cashier arose, his head streaming with blood and was told to keep quiet if he wanted to live. The third robber then walked to the safe, which happened to be open, and taking out the coin and bills, shoved them into a canvas bag, which he then threw over his shoulder. The three men thereupon departed, joining the two who had remained without to guard the approaches to the bank.

Just before the robbers had made their sudden appearance, F. A. Frasier, assistant cashier, had stepped out. As soon as he perceived what was transpiring he came with a shotgun, but a ball from the rifle of one of the robbers, wounding him in the hip, prevented his interference. A colored man was also shot in the leg and several others narrowly escaped injury or death at the hands of the murderous gang. The robbery successfully consummated, the five desperadoes mounted as many fleet horses, which had been held in readiness by one of their number and speedily disappeared via the trail which leads over the mountains to the northward of Roslyn.

The sheriff was notified forthwith and speedily organizing a large posse, started in hot pursuit. Manager W. R. Abrams, of the firm of Snipes and Company, offered a reward of one thousand dollars for the apprehension of the robbers. This was supplemented by an offer of an equal amount by Cashier Abernethy and of five hundred dollars by Governor Terry.

The robbers were dressed as cowboys and showed themselves to be expert in horsemanship and the use of weapons, executing their plans in a manner that would have done credit to the James gang. As Saturday was payday at the Roslyn mine, $40,000 arrived from Tacoma that morning. It was this the robbers were after. They presumed it was on deposit in the bank for distribution, but fortunately it had been taken to the company's office. What are supposed to have been three of the gang were noticed by coal company officials at the depot in Cle Elum at five o'clock Saturday morning when the money was transferred from the Northern Pacific car to the coach on the Roslyn branch.

By seven o'clock on the day on which the robbery took place, thirteen of the pursuing posse came in contact with three of the desperadoes and a few shots were exchanged but, owing to the darkness, it was impossible to tell with what effect to the fugitives. None of the posse was hurt. The next morning three horses were found on the trail taken by the robbers, and marks on them evinced that they had been hard ridden. Later in the day two of them were identified as having been among the animals ridden by the desperadoes Saturday. The other horse was a pack animal laden with provisions and clothing. Two of these animals were retained in the hope that their original owners might be found by the brands.

The Sheriff's posse returned after a search of several days duration, having failed to find any new trail of the gang. The same day another Roslyn party also returned, reporting that they had followed the trail of the robbers along the high ridges to a point east of Mount Stuart, where was found the remains of a fire where clothing had been burnt. The ashes were still warm.

A detective named M. C. Sullivan was placed on the trail of the desperadoes and toward the end of November he arrested Cal Hale, Tom Kimzie and George Zachary in eastern Oregon on a warrant issued upon the affidavit of F. A. Abernethy, the cashier of the bank, charging these men and others with being the perpetrators of the crime. The warrant called for the arrest of Byron Barnard in addition to the men named, but for some reason he was not taken into custody, though he telegraphed his address to the chief of police at Portland, Oregon, on learning that he was wanted.

ROSLYN CITY COUNCIL, 1948

Standing: Left to Right; Joe Peckinino, Fire Chief; Bob Ronald, Chief of Police; Harry Boardman, Andy Dean, George Bannister, Percy V. Wright, Matt Kuchin Jr.

Seated: John McSherry, City Clerk; Harry L. Brown, City Attorney; J. C. McGovern, Mayor; Ronald Schele, Edward Pearson.

HISTORY OF THE ROSLYN FIRE DEPARTMENT

Hose Company #1 was organized in 1888 and was also known as Fleet Company #1. Under Foreman Morris O'Brien and Assistant Foreman Charles Adams with the following members: Morris O'Brien, Foreman; Charles Adams, Assistant Foreman; M. A. Miller, A. Patrick, F. Fleming, James Heron, Dave Brown, Charles Miller, C. O. Swain, E. Mathews, Dick Denney, George Beal, William McKay, Gus Lindh, J. Bevins, J. Swansborough, William Arundell, Joe Denney, Harry Taylor, John Berg, Gus Mohrand, C. H. Merriman.

This company was organized before Roslyn was incorporated as a town. With no equipment this company gallantly fought the Big Fire of July 22, 1888 when three blocks were completely wiped out. This fire was fought by a Bucket Brigade, passing water hand over hand from a mountain spring which was located at the old reservoir. This was the only supply of water at that time. The fire started at the Knights of Labor Union Hall located at 1st Street and Idaho Avenue.

On July 12, 1889 three citizens were appointed to work with Councilman John Lynn, C. O. Swain and Charles Adams with instructions to purchase the following: A fire bell, which is still in use. A three-hundred pound bell, costing thirty cents a pound, was purchased. This bell was bought on August 7, 1890. Also on the same date the city purchased a lot on Pennsylvania Avenue where a fire and hose house was erected.

On September 11, 1890 bids were called for and accepted by the City Council to erect an Engine and Hose House. Charles Adams was awarded the contract, on the lowest bid of $589.00.

On December 1, 1890 the following equipment was purchased with the approval of the City Council: One fire cart equipped with two axes, four lanterns, one tool box, six spanners and wrenches.

On April 2, 1891 Foreman O'Brien obtained permission to purchase Hook and Ladder gear to be used on a cart. Hose drying racks were also built and the Fire House was painted. Marshal George Beal was instructed to place ropes on Fire Bell from first floor of the Hose House.

On August 20, 1891 Dan W. Haight was approved a Fire Chief.

On August 10, 1893 the Fire Department purchased helmets and coats for Hose Company #1.

James Wright was elected Fire Chief of Roslyn Fire Department and after serving a short term he resigned to accept a position on the Police Force. Robert P. Lumsden was then elected to fill the vacancy.

On February 12, 1894, a new hook and ladder cart was purchased and the "Fleet Foot Hook and Ladder Company" was formed.

On October 8, 1894 a fire hose drying tower was built by Charles Adams at the price of $225.

Continued-

At the present time the City of Roslyn maintains a Volunteer Fire Department of sixty members. This Department is considered one of the most efficient in the state. They have also taken great interest in Civic Affairs, First Aid and Gas Mask teams coached by Thomas McKean have won prizes at State meets. During the war years the Fire Department did a splendid job of collecting material for the scrap drive.

Equipment in use at the present time consists of two completely equipped trucks and an Emerson resuscitator.

Present officers of the Roslyn Fire Department are Joe Pechinino, Fire Chief; Fred Dullahant, Assistant Chief; Anthony A. Stoves, Jr. Secretary and Treasurer.

IMMACULATE CONCEPTION CHURCH

The Immaculate Conception Parish was originally established and attended from St. Andrews Parish, Ellensburg, Washington about August 1886 under the direction of Reverend L. Kusters. The present church was erected in 1887 and built by George Bannister Sr. Reverend J. Sweens later built a small two room building as a temporary rectory, back of the church by the alley.

Reverend B. E. Kornke, 1903 to 1916, became the first resident pastor; he built the present rectory. To date, there has been fourteen resident pastors.

The first masses offered within the present limits were said at the Meneghel home in Roslyn and the Boyle-Mulvaney home in Ronald in 1887 by the Reverend L. Kusters.

The earliest records show the following: First Baptism, John Radoscheck, September 21, 1887. First Burial, Jacob Uberts, November 15, 1887. First Marriage, H. Supak and Amelia Ratkouski, February 8, 1891. First Confirmation, 1909 by Bishop O'Dea.

Of the original fifty members starting the parish, still present are Peter Mulvaney of Ronald and Mrs. John Pistona of Roslyn.

THE CAVALRY EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Our present church building used to be the St. John's African Methodist Episcopal Church situated over on Fifth Street. It was sold to H. D. Thurston, a carpenter, for $350.00 at a sheriff's sale in November 1892. It was sold again to the trustees of Cavalry Mission on June the 26th, 1894 and it was moved to its present location at Arizona and Second Streets. This time it was sold for $450.00. The Reverend John Antle, a Newfoundlander, was the first minister.

Mount Pisgah Presbyterian Church, Roslyn Washington; Built in 1899 at the cost of $3,000.00.

ROSLYN SCHOOL

The first school in Roslyn was maintained in the spring of 1887 in a dwelling on Dakota Avenue.

In 1888 the district built a small frame schoolhouse on Brookside near the Catholic Church. This building was 30 feet by 50 feet, divided into two rooms.

Increasing enrollment necessitated the construction of a larger building. This four-room building (Central) was erected in 1890 on the present school site at Third Street and Idaho Avenue. Later on two more rooms were added to the Central Building.

As the enrollment increased still further another six-room building (Primary) was constructed on the present school site in 1900. The Primary Building was enlarged to eight rooms at a later date.

A High School Building was erected on the present school site in 1910 on the corner of Second Street and Idaho Avenue.

The Central and Primary Buildings were torn down in 1937 and in their place the present Grade School was erected.

The High School Building was torn down in 1946.
